AMIRA'S LOVE ORACLE CARD READING WORKSHOP

Think of tarot cards and many conjure up an image of a head-scarfed old lady tuning in to your Aunt Mildred on the other side to find out when you're going to meet that tall, dark, handsome man. But it's not all hocus pocus. You don't need to possess, or even believe in, psychic powers to read the cards. In fact, when I walk into a card reading workshop at The Third Eye on Sheikh Zayed Road, I am greeted by five other women who, like me, simply want a little guidance in life and are intrigued by the idea that a pack of cards could help. Many believe our lives are already mapped out and our 'Higher Selves' know what's in store. The cards can therefore be used to tap into our energy and communicate the guidance we are seeking. Amira Celon, a psychic and medium who runs the workshop, has produced her own version of tarot cards, called Love Oracle Cards. More up-to-date and simpler than tarot, they are geared towards answering questions related to your love life. Together, we get to know their meanings and how to read them, such as with a three-card spread or a seven-card story. Most importantly, we are taught to follow our instincts with the cards, and it is amazing how easily that comes. I did a reading for a woman I had just met; I had only been reading cards for an hour, but I got her situation spot on. I even managed to give her a strategy on how to get the guy she was after! Her reading for me, too, was spookily accurate. I have done readings for myself and others since, and each time the cards selected seem to relate to the question we need answered and the meanings just come to me. Looks like we should ask advice from our 'Higher Selves' more often...
